SEVA INDIA

Human service professions work efficiently at the grassroots level when accessibility, acceptance and culturally competent practices amalgamate into their design features. It might be challenging our intellects; why the world is pacing fast towards localizing contexts and contents even in this era of artificial intelligence? The near to perfect reason would be globalizing the local and localizing the global towards total inclusive growth!

The development sector is the primary avenue for localizing cutting-edge academic wisdom to micro contexts to function effectively. We must indoctrinate the professions with native examples, best practices and lessons learnt from the local implementation of Global knowledge apart from the contributions of the elite academia to work in perfect harmony with this society and its cultural aspects towards fast fulfilment of our dream to be a developed nation! It's high time that we look forward to Indianizing our thoughts and knowledge in tune with Indian grassroots realities and unmet needs to cater to the dynamically changing phases of the community.
